

Internet Discourse: The Meta-language Representation of Practice

Collection Editor: Alexander Barkovich

Description

The new communicational reality conditions an unusual scientific situation: practice is much more productive than its theoretical reflection. With that, the logic of further development requires a generalization of applied achievements. In this regard, linguistic, technical and interdisciplinary researches are needed, which can be realized within the framework of a wide meta-language approach.

The book is devoted to the identification and systematization of generalized prototypical traits of contemporary communication. Related interdisciplinary approach is aimed on wide scientific search of humanities and informational paradigm integrity. In this context the representation of Internet discourse suggests phenomenological, structural and functional meta-description supporting speech practice sphere.

About the Editor

Alexander Barkovich's research activity is focused on linguistic aspects of communication, information and social networks. He defended his habilitational thesis in Theory of Language in 2016. He is the author of more than 100 scientific publications. Monograph Informational Linguistics: The New Communicational Reality was published in Cambridge Scholars in 2020.

Submission Requirements

All chapters submitted should conform to the grammar and formatting guidelines provided by Cambridge Scholars Publishing, which can be viewed here: <https://www.cambridgescholars.com/pages/forms-guidelines>;

Unless agreed with the Editor prior to submission, referencing should be in Chicago;

Any work submitted for publication should be free of copyright restrictions and a statement should be submitted in support of this;

Contributions should be scholarly rather than anecdotal or unverifiable;

Contributions must be wholly in English, excluding footnotes, appendices and short extracts for translation;

While we will perform pre-press evaluations on the collection, we do not provide full proofreading services, so we ask that works are submitted to us in their final, 'ready-to-go' form.

You can view open projects at the link below:

<https://www.cambridgescholars.com/pages/guest-edited-collections>

