

Pan-Africanism: Past, Present, and Future

Collection Editor: Aziz Mostefaoui

Description

Pan-Africanism has undergone some mutations in its ideals and objectives since its introduction in the 1900 London Conference, attempting to adapt to various conjunctures that the Africans have been through. What was Pan-Africanism in the past? What is its status today? And what future awaits it?

About the Editor

Aziz Mostefaoui is a Professor of African civilization at Ahmed Draia University of Adrar (Algeria). His research is centred on trans-Atlantic slave trade, Pan-Africanism, African history, and African-American history. He has published a number of articles in books and academic reviews on Pan-Africanism, slave trade, and African history.

Submission Requirements

All chapters submitted should conform to the grammar and formatting guidelines provided by Cambridge Scholars Publishing, which can be viewed here: <https://www.cambridgescholars.com/pages/forms-guidelines>;

Unless agreed with the Editor prior to submission, referencing should be in Chicago;

Any work submitted for publication should be free of copyright restrictions and a statement should be submitted in support of this;

Contributions should be scholarly rather than anecdotal or unverifiable;

Contributions must be wholly in English, excluding footnotes, appendices and short extracts for translation;

While we will perform pre-press evaluations on the collection, we do not provide full proofreading services, so we ask that works are submitted to us in their final, 'ready-to-go' form.
