

The Various Models of the Lordship in Europe (9th-15th cent.)

Collection Editors: Riccardo Berardi and Antonio Antonetti

---

Description

Through a collection of papers about juridical, material, financial, and religious aspects, this book intends to delve into the management models and the social practises that the overlords built up as means of power for organizing the social networks and the political space around them from the Scandinavia to the Mediterranean Sea.

About the Editors

Riccardo Berardi held the PhD title at the University of S. Marin and University of Nantes. He is now research fellow at the University of Paris 1 (LAMOP). Professor of History and Philosophy in Italian high schools.

Antonio Antonetti held the PhD title at the University of Salerno. He is now Research Fellow at the University of Campania with a project on the justice's procedures. The core points of his investigation are the bishops and the diocesan structures in the high and late Middle Ages in Southern Italy.
