

Urban Livability in the Global South

Collection Editor: Benjamin L. Saitluanga

Description

Urban Livability is about enhancing efficiency of urban infrastructural networks and governance towards equitable and inclusive economy and sustainable environment. Urban Livability in the Global South aims to understand the specific challenges and strategies to enhance livability of towns and cities in Asia, Africa and Latin America. It is a rich collection of insightful and readable essays for students, researchers and policy makers.

About the Editor

Benjamin L. Saitluanga is an Associate Professor of Geography, Mizoram University, India. He is the author of Himalayan Quality of Life (2017) and Regional Development in Northeast India (2013). His works on urban related issues have been published in a number of journals and books. His research areas include urban livability, smart cities, housing, and regional development.

Submission Requirements

All chapters submitted should conform to the grammar and formatting guidelines provided by Cambridge Scholars Publishing, which can be viewed here: <https://www.cambridgescholars.com/pages/forms-guidelines;>

Unless agreed with the Editor prior to submission, referencing should be in Chicago;

Any work submitted for publication should be free of copyright restrictions and a statement should be submitted in support of this;

Contributions should be scholarly rather than anecdotal or unverifiable;

Contributions must be wholly in English, excluding footnotes, appendices and short extracts for translation;

While we will perform pre-press evaluations on the collection, we do not provide full proofreading services, so we ask that works are submitted to us in their final, 'ready-to-go' form.

You can view open projects at the link below:

<https://www.cambridgescholars.com/pages/guest-edited-collections>

